SITUATION UPDATE

Winter storm Huda started sweeping across the Middle East on 6 Jan 2015, bringing heavy snow and rainfall, high winds and freezing temperatures to hundreds of thousands of refugees living in camps and makeshift shelters and houses with inadequate heating across the region.

Previously access to free health services for Syrian refugees at Ministry of Health facilities were free, however following a decision in November 2014 by the Cabinet, Syrian refugees are now charged the same fees as non-insured Jordanians. Although this rate is highly subsidized, it is still expected to add considerable hardship for many refugees.

Cash Transfer Programme (CTP)

The IFRC Cash Transfer Programme (CTP) has been providing unconditional cash transfers to Syrian refugees since August 2012 where 3,000 households (15,000 people) were provided with cash and winterization support. The final payments are scheduled in February 2015 as no more funds are available to support these households. The current Emergency Appeal is targeting 4,000 households with cash and winterization support until December 2015.

Community Based Health and First Aid (CBHFA) Programme

In December an analysis was done for community evaluations and CBHFA project wrap up workshops. Feedback received indicate the need to continue with the CBHFA programme as the targeted communities reported having gained a lot of vital information for their health well-being and they would also like to learn more as well as new health topics.
