This bulletin is being issued for information only, and reflects the current situation and details available at this time. The Red Cross Society of China (RCSC), with the support of the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (IFRC), has determined that external assistance is not required, and is therefore not seeking funding or other assistance from donors at this time.

Typhoons Saola, Damrey and more recently Haikui have brought the heaviest rains to northern and southern provinces along China’s eastern coast since the beginning of August. The heaviest hit provinces include Liaoning province in the northeast, Hebei in the north, central Hubei province, southeast Fujian province, Shandong, Jiangsu, Anhui and Zhejiang provinces along the eastern region and Shanghai which sits along the central eastern coast and through China's eastern coastal regions. As of 9 August, 40 people have been confirmed dead and 13 others remained missing. A total of 2,553,000 people have been forced to relocate and/or are in grave need of daily necessities.

The headquarters of the Red Cross Society of China (RCSC) initiated different levels of emergency response in affected provinces and sent relief supplies including quilts, tents, clothes, family kits from local disaster preparedness warehouses to help the vulnerable residents in flood-hitting areas. The provincial branches have been responding in preparation and in response to these disasters, initiating their contingency plans immediately upon the landing of each typhoon and dispatching teams to provide needed assistance to affected communities with relief supplies, emergency funds and volunteer support services to those in need.

With the joint efforts of the Liaoning Red Cross staff and local volunteers, the relief items were loaded to the trucks and sent to the affected areas in Liaoning province within 48 hours after the torrential rain on 4 August. Photo: Liaoning Red Cross

Typhoon Damrey made landfall in east China’s Jiangsu province on Thursday night (2 August), bringing center winds reaching highest speeds of 35m/s and dumping rains at 50mm in Jiangsu and neighbouring Shandong province, forcing more than 292,600 people to evacuate to schools, relatives’ houses etc. A total of 27,315 houses collapsed and another 27,050 were damaged in 122 villages in Shandong province.

As of 8 August, 25 people had been confirmed dead and nine remained missing due to heavy rains brought in by Typhoon Saola to 20 counties and districts in central China's Hubei province.

Rainstorms and rain-triggered mudslides have destroyed nearly 9,708 houses and damaged at least 36,726 others, according to the figures from the provincial Red Cross Branch. Over 135,000 local residents have been forced to relocate or are in grave need of daily necessities.

In the northeastern province of Liaoning and the northern province of Hebei, millions of people were affected by floods caused by Typhoon Damrey. At least nine people have died and another four remained missing in Liaoning. Nearly 1.46 million people of 43 counties and urban districts in 10 cities of Liaoning were affected by heavy rains and floods. The average rainfall of the entire province reached 78.6mm, leaving 148 reservoirs above the warning level. More than 10,000 houses collapsed and about 17,000 houses were damaged, forcing 138,000 people to evacuate. Nearly 70,000 hectares of crops were also damaged, with direct economic losses reaching 2.36 billion yuan (USD 370.4 million). It also temporarily disrupted rail services within the province. People had to wait or were able to refund train tickets without any extra expenses. In Hebei, about 2.33 million people were affected by the disaster, including one dead, one missing and 151,000 people who were relocated to evacuation centers. About 9,400 houses were destroyed in the flooding. On 4 August, the provincial meteorological bureau released a yellow typhoon alarm, indicating the third level of warning.

The most recent and severe Typhoon Haikui landed on the coast of eastern China, affecting Shanghai, Anhui, Jiangsu and Zhejiang provinces early Wednesday morning (8 August). The typhoon was moving northwest at 10 to 15 km per hour and reached speeds up to 115 km per hour near the city’s coast. The local Meteorological Bureaus raised the typhoon alarm to red, the highest level of warning. In Anhui, heavy downpours with the cumulative rainfall of 600mm have left one dead and affected more than 1.76 million people in the province, including 163,000 people who had to be relocated. Moreover, more than 1,500 houses collapsed and 80,000 hectares of cropland were affected by the downpours, resulting in direct economic losses of 880 million yuan (138.36 million U.S. dollars). Heavy downpours left three people dead and 1,546,000 people relocated as of Thursday (9 August) in Zhejiang province. Two people died and seven others were injured by rain-triggered accidents in Shanghai. A total of 370,000 people who live in port areas or temporary houses were evacuated. In the four provinces, Typhoon Haikui has affected more than six million people and destroyed 7,561 houses and 388,180 hectares of cropland.
Red Cross and Red Crescent action

The headquarters of Red Cross Society of China (RCSC) initiated different levels of emergency response in affected provinces and sent relief supplies including quilts, tents, clothes, family kits from local disaster preparedness warehouses to help the vulnerable residents affected by floods or living in evacuation points.

On 2 August, Shandong Red Cross allocated CNY 200,000 to four cities (Rizhao, Weifang, Binzhou and Dezhou) for flour procurement, benefiting around 7,000 families which are 18,200 people altogether. The director of the Health and Relief Department is planning to go to these cities on 14 August to monitor relief distribution to beneficiaries and assess further needs.

Hebei provincial branch sent out CNY 300,000 emergency funds to Qinhuangdao City, and CNY 200,000 and 40 tents (valued CNY 100,000) to Tangshan City. The executive president of the provincial branch, together with city branch staff, went to the two cities to monitor the disaster situation on 6 August. The Red Cross branches are also collecting donations of medical supplies to be distributed to the affected communities. As of now, no epidemic has occurred. A total of 84 disinfectant bottles were sent out to communities to help with mosquito bites.

On 9 August, the provincial, city and county branch staff and volunteers in Liaoning province not only participated in supplies distribution like quilts, clothes, tents and towel blanket but also in the service within evacuation points in Anshan City and Huludao City. The director of Disaster Management Division of RCSC headquarters went to Liaoning and Hebei (the two closest provinces to Beijing) to investigate the situation and guide disaster response action within the provinces. Zhejiang Red Cross launched the Provincial National Disaster Contingency Plan on 8 August immediately after the landing of the typhoon Haikui. The branch established an emergency response lead group that is overseeing the Red Cross response in the affected areas. Working teams immediately coordinated Red Cross response including distributing relief supplies to those affected. By 9 August, the provincial branch collected relief supplies valued at CNY 717,860, including jackets and quilts provided by the RCSC headquarters, bottled water and instant noodles donated by Kangshifu company, and family kits and jackets released from the Red Cross disaster preparedness centre. The first batch of supplies and CNY 200,000 emergency funds were delivered to different cities and counties in the province.

Hubei Red Cross distributed more than 20,000 mosquito nets and clothing items to the affected communities. The vice president of the branch went to affected areas for an impact assessment. Following his assessment of the local needs, the Hubei water and sanitation emergency response team (ERT) was dispatched on 9 August for water supplies for the residents in Shiyan City. A total of eight ERT members and four volunteers were assessing the following: quality of drinking water in residences, a damaged water processing plant and their recovery situation, and water purification situation. Further action will be taken if needed.

How we work

All IFRC assistance seeks to adhere to the Code of Conduct for the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement and Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs) in Disaster Relief and the Humanitarian Charter and Minimum Standards in Disaster Response (Sphere) in delivering assistance to the most vulnerable.

The IFRC’s vision is to inspire, encourage, facilitate and promote at all times all forms of humanitarian activities by National Societies, with a view to preventing and alleviating human suffering, and thereby contributing to the maintenance and promotion of human dignity and peace in the world.
The IFRC’s work is guided by Strategy 2020 which puts forward three strategic aims:

1. Save lives, protect livelihoods, and strengthen recovery from disaster and crises.
2. Enable healthy and safe living.
3. Promote social inclusion and a culture of non-violence and peace.
