RELIEF, REPATRIATION AND RESETTLEMENT

CHF 13,279,000
1,815,000 beneficiaries

Programme no 01.05/99

The Context

The civil wars raging in Liberia and Sierra Leone since 1990 have had serious repercussions on both the countries themselves and their neighbours. Liberia and Sierra Leone were faced with huge internal population displacements, while Côte d’Ivoire and Guinea were burdened with hundreds of thousands of refugees. Ever since the outbreak of hostilities, the Federation has supported the National Societies in all four countries to provide relief assistance to refugees and internally displaced persons (IDPs). It is foreseen that in 1999, the relative stability brought by the reinstatement of the Sierra Leonian government will continue, with at least two-thirds of the country being safe and accessible. Refugees who fled from north-eastern Sierra Leone, the country's most productive region, are expected to return to their homes in 1999. In Liberia, the political stability that followed the 1997 elections is likely to hold, prompting a significant number of refugees and IDPs to return to their places of origin.

The Federation’s response to this situation will be to facilitate the return of 1.8 million IDPs and refugees by increasing the provision of resettlement and rehabilitation services in Sierra Leone and Liberia, while continuing to seek a reduction of relief assistance in Guinea and Côte d’Ivoire as refugees repatriate. Specific programme components include repatriation services and resettlement programmes, community health interventions, disaster preparedness and prevention as safeguards against potential destabilisation, as well as capacity building for communities, Red Cross branches and headquarters involved in assisting the war-affected.

In the course of seven years of relief work, the National Society in Guinea, supported by the Federation, trained 557 relief workers, including 40 first aid workers, 16 supervisors and three co-ordinators, who are presently active in refugee aid operations and branch development activities. The National Society has considerable human resource potential - its 38 prefectoral and municipal committees have approximately 12,300 members.

In Liberia, the National Society has 201 paid staff and more than 2,000 volunteers, who are active throughout the nation's 13 operational chapters and 67 branches in each of the major districts.

The National Society in Sierra Leone has nine branches throughout the country, with a total membership of about 11,000. Core staff and volunteers are trained and experienced: the relief programme presently employs 63 temporary staff, including medical personnel, and 36 volunteers.

Currently, there are six four-wheel drives and one base radio.

In all four countries, the regional delegation in Abidjan provides technical assistance in the fields of development, first aid, and health, as well as financial, logistic and information services.

Co-operation

In all four countries involved, the Federation and the National Societies co-operate closely with the ICRC, various UN agencies, and the respective governments.

Programme no 01.06/99

The Context

Nigeria is still under military rule, but recent events indicate that a handover of power to a civilian government may occur in the near future. The new head of state, General Abdulsalami Abubakar, has promised general elections in the first quarter of 1999.
While the economy is still in a fragile state, with low growth and investment levels, recent indicators suggest an upturn in 1999. However, a majority of Nigerians have seen a deterioration of their social and health conditions over the last decade. Less than half the population in rural areas now have access to health services and safe water. Annual per capita income has plummeted to USD 240.

As a result, people are particularly susceptible to outbreaks of infectious diseases such as yellow fever, meningitis and cholera, and to natural disasters such as floods and landslides. Competition for scarce resources has also led to a steady increase in the number of communal conflicts which have led to loss of life and destruction of property in different parts of Nigeria.

The Operation

The Nigerian Red Cross Society (NRCS) works in three programme areas: Community-Based Health, Capacity Building, and Disaster Preparedness/Relief.

The health programme concentrates on preventive health: 150 volunteers and officers have been trained and are now working within their communities. In 1999, the network of community volunteers will be extended, while Mother's Clubs are to be established to improve mother and child health care. NRCS youth groups will start peer education to encourage safe sex and reduce the level of sexually transmitted diseases.

NRCS capacity building is being funded by the Tripartite Programme, which started in 1998 with the support of the governments and National Societies of Sweden, Britain and Canada. Headquarters were strengthened by new management systems and structures, the implementation of a new reporting system, and additional staff. The branches received support through training of Branch Training Officers in disaster management. The programme will continue in 1999.

During 1998, NRCS has been responsible for providing assistance to over 5,000 Liberian and Sierra Leonean refugees residing in western Nigeria. The programme was implemented in co-operation with UNHCR, who will pull out in 1999. While the majority of Liberian refugees are self-sufficient, the most vulnerable groups among them (600 persons) still need food assistance, as do 1,350 Sierra Leonean refugees. NRCS aims at continuing its role as the most effective in-country organisation to respond to natural and man-made disasters. Nigeria is included in the regional health-related disaster preparedness and prevention plan. The objectives and activities of the regional plan are included in the Community - Based Health Programme.

Objectives

• Health

Ensure strengthened management and monitoring capacities of health staff at all levels of NRCS.
Establish strengthened capacity among the most vulnerable through First Aid, immunisation, health education and community health measures against the most common epidemics and water-borne diseases.

- Capacity Building

  Develop efficient headquarters to provide adequate guidance and support to branches.

  Establish functional offices with a full-time Branch Secretary in each of the 37 branches.

  Set up an adequate communications system throughout the country, with strategically placed relief stocks in Lagos and Kano.

- DPP/Relief

  Pre-stock non-food relief items in the aftermath of man-made and natural disasters.

  Provide food to 600 Liberian and 1,350 Sierra Leonean refugees.

  Train volunteer Disaster Preparedness and Response Management teams in each branch to respond in a planned, timely and appropriate manner in the event of disaster.

Plan of Action

- Health

  Hold Training of Trainers Workshop, two workshops on the programme for Health Advisers, and six zonal technical committee meetings with a training component.

  Establish three service units: emergency squads, mothers’ clubs and youth peer groups in one community in each branch; training of 20 volunteers within each service unit. The emergency squads will be trained in accident and disaster response, as well as disaster preparedness; the mothers’ clubs will provide education in mother and child care and household hygiene; the youth peer groups will focus on environmental sanitation, adolescent health, and sexually transmitted diseases.

  Carry out routine immunisation campaigns in 12 Local Government Areas benefiting a total of 48,000 children and women of child-bearing age.

- Capacity Building

  Expand headquarters office space.

  Hold training workshops in governance and management, reporting, and management skills, as well as resource development.
Implement the results of these workshops at branch level through the appointment of Branch Secretaries and through the establishment of reporting systems in all branches.

Installation of four HF radios and two pactors in selected branches.

• DPP/Relief

Purchase relief items for pre-stocking in Lagos and Kano warehouses.

Establish disaster management, needs assessment and relief distribution training in all branches.

Distribute monthly supplementary food supplies to 1,350 Sierra Leonean refugees: 3 kg of rice and 1.5 kg of beans per person per month.

Distribute monthly supplementary food supplies to 600 Liberian refugees: 6 kg of rice and 1.5 kg of beans per person per month.

Resource Planning

The NRCS programmes in Community-Based Health, Capacity Building and DPP/Relief will be carried out by the staff of NRCS headquarters and its 37 branches. While the National Society will develop a fund-raising plan aimed at tapping local sources of funding, continued financial support through the Federation Delegation will be instrumental to the implementation of the programmes.

Capacity

• The Operating National Society

The National Society has a Red Cross Branch in each of Nigeria's 37 States with a total membership of 262,700 volunteers. National headquarters is staffed with nine senior officers. The gradual appointment of full-time Branch Secretaries will start by the end of 1998 as part of the Capacity Building Programme. Fifteen branches have HF radios and 22 branches have transport. The headquarters has five vehicles.

• The Federation

A three-person delegation (Head of Delegation, Health Delegate and Finance/ID Delegate) will be maintained to assist the National Society in implementing the development plan. The Regional Delegation in Abidjan provides additional assistance in the prevention and preparedness for health-related disasters.

• Other Red Cross/Red Crescent Resources
The ICRC has a delegation in Lagos. It has provided support in the areas of dissemination, extending the radio network, emergency relief and institutional development over the last decade. This support will continue in 1999.

Co-operation

There is close co-operation with UN agencies, UNHCR and UNICEF in particular. In the Health and Relief programmes, NRCS co-operates closely with the government. The Health Programme is carried out with the full support of the Federal Ministry of Health with technical input from MSF. Embassies generally provide support in disaster situations.
