Summary: Through this appeal, the IFRC aims to support the SRCS Branches and National Disaster Response Teams (BDRTs and NDRTs) to respond to acute humanitarian needs of disasters through provision of rapid and effective lifesaving assistance to an estimated 150,000 beneficiaries, with particular focus on internally displaced people across eleven disaster prone states of Sudan (the five states of Darfur, Blue Nile, South Kordofan, North Kordofan, White Nile, Sennar and Khartoum states). The appeal also aims to consolidate the capacities of the National Societies and its branches and promote humanitarian diplomacy in building peace and promotion of the Red Cross Red Crescent Fundamental Principles.

The appeal has so far received support from the Japanese Red Cross Society and the Red Cross of Monaco. In addition, USAID has made a soft pledge towards the appeal, while Swiss Red Cross has contributed bilaterally to support related activities in Sennar State. Other partners are encouraged to support this appeal in order to enable the Sudan Red Crescent provide assistance to the affected beneficiaries.

The situation

In 2013, sporadic inter-tribal conflicts continue to be reported in different parts of Darfur States resulting in new internal displacement of the population. Clashes between the armed opposition movements and the Government of Sudan forces have also been reported within Darfur States and the three Protocol Areas. Despite progress in the implementation of peace agreements between Sudan and South Sudan, and dialogue between Sudan Government and SPLM-N, there continues to be reports of conflict in several areas resulting in new displacements in the three Protocol areas. Between 29 April and 30 May 2013, clashes between armed oppositions group and the Government of Sudan armed forces in parts of North Kordofan and South Kordofan States have resulted in an estimated internal displacement of 63,000 people. The different clashes have forced tens of thousands of people from their homes into neighboring localities or States within Sudan and are causing an ongoing protracted humanitarian crisis in many parts of the country. The humanitarian situation remains difficult for the affected population. Through this appeal SRCS seeks to respond to the needs of affected populations.

Coordination and partnerships

SRCS and IFRC have held bilateral and joint meetings with movement and non-movement partners at national and federal level to discuss the progress of the response operation and mobilize support for the proposed activities under this appeal. A movement partner telephone conference was organized to discuss potential support towards the appeal.

In addition, SRCS and IFRC have held several internal meetings as part of the continuous quality improvement including reviewing and taking into consideration the recommendations of the evaluation carried out for the previous appeal.

Red Cross and Red Crescent action

On 16 May 2013, a DREF operation was launched to respond to urgent needs in North and South Kordofan states following the fighting that erupted in April 2013 between armed oppositions groups and the Sudan government armed force. An operations update n°1 of the DREF operation was issued on 23 June 2013 and provides details of the support given to the internally displaced people from that incident. Approximately 25,000 persons have been assisted through the support provided during this DREF operation.

SRCS South Darfur branch in collaboration and coordination with South Sudan Red Cross society was able to repatriate 127 persons (94 child and 33 women) of South Sudan origin to South Sudan between 26 June and 15 July 2013.

IFRC has conducted an independent evaluation of two of the three Emergency Appeals launched between 2011 and 2012 and the preliminary findings of the evaluation have been used to inform the development of this appeal.
