The Disaster/Situation: The relief operation is complete and plans will be shared with PNS for the use of remaining relief items. As natural disasters are a constant threat in Algeria, the Algerian Red Crescent Society (ARCS) will work closely with a Federation programme coordinator to upgrade the society's DP/DR capacities.

This Operations Update is intended to provide a provisional final narrative report on ARCS activities carried out in relation to this appeal (35/2001). A provisional financial statement covering activities up until the end of May 2002 is attached herein. Final financial details regarding delegate expenditures and contributions from specific donors remain to be settled. The final report containing final figures for the operation is planned for publication at the close of 2002.

Operational Developments:

Summary

Torrential rain and exceptionally strong winds causing mudslides and floods, on Saturday 10 November 2001, in the capital of Algiers and in 13 other regions of the country took the population in general, including the Algerian Red Crescent Society (ARCS), by surprise. The national society had never experienced a disaster of this magnitude affecting multiple regions. Consequently, the Society's capacity to quickly mobilise resources was not, in this case, as good as it could have been.

On 12 November 2001, the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies issued a request for international assistance (Federation appeal 35/01) on behalf of the Algerian Red Crescent Society (ARCS) seeking CHF 2,034,000 in cash, kind and services to assist 6,000 families in Algiers and 13 other coastal regions (wilayate) of Algeria.

The flooding caused severe damage to the capital of Algiers where over 90 houses were destroyed and 325 apartments and commercial premises partly damaged. In Algiers alone, an additional 10,000 families, already vulnerable due to a decade of political unrest and a troubled economy, were further weakened by the catastrophe.

Since the November 2001 launch of the preliminary appeal, the general situation in most of the disaster affected regions has improved. Nevertheless, there are still outstanding areas that require assistance.

Red Cross Red Crescent action w

From the flood's onset, the ARCS received support from the whole Red Cross Red Crescent Movement with its efforts to assist disaster victims.

Red Cross and Red Crescent Society w

Over 1500 ARCS volunteers were mobilised and were at the forefront of the relief efforts. Of these, 120 volunteers who were trained in first aid provided critically needed assistance. In total the ARCS provided assistance to a total of 6453 families throughout 14 regions (wilayat).

Wilayat	Number of families
Oran	1350
Chlef	1018
Algiers	820
Tipaza	630
Ain Defla	580
Saida	480
Mostaganem	271
Relizane	263
Ain Temouchent	220
Tizi Ouzou	220
Tlemcen	210
Tiaret	140
Boumerdes	128
Mascara	123
Total	6,453

From day one, the ARCS volunteers actively addressed the needs of the victims throughout the affected territory. During the initial weeks of the flooding, the three main actors in Algiers (ARCS, Solidarity Ministry and Civil Protection) assisted flood victims sheltered at 12 temporary sites (later reduced to 10 sites).

Relief items and medical assistance were provided based on individual needs. Assistance provided consisted of: hot meals, milk for infants, food parcels, mineral water, blankets, clothing, utensils, jerry cans and hygiene products.

From the beginning, the ARCS provided the wilayat of Algiers, Tipaza, Ain Defla, Chlef, Relizane, Oran, Boumerdes, Tizi Ouzou and Mascara with assistance in food and non-food relief items. The ARCS volunteers provided meals to 38,900 flood victims at three temporary sites. Although several regions, specifically Tiaret and Ain Temouchent, had informed the ARCS that they were self-sufficient and could manage with relief goods in stock, local branches from the wilayat Saida, Tlemcen and Mostaganem called for assistance to replenish their emergency stock as well as to continue assisting those in need.

Relief distributions w

Objective: to provide 6,000 families with essential domestic items.Activities to meet the objective:

- 24,000 pcs. of warm clothing procured and distributed;
- Utensils and fuel for cooking procured and distributed;
- 40,000 blankets procured and distributed.

The national and international response to the appeal exceeded expectations, and a diverse and large quantity of goods were donated. Donated goods were more than adequate to meet the needs of the beneficiaries. It was therefore unnecessary to purchase items such as stoves and heaters.

Items distributed to affected families included:

- 28 cartons of warm clothing;
- 16,780 blankets;
- 971 kitchen sets;
- 1600 buckets.

Shelter wObjective: to provide shelter materials for 6,000 homeless families.*Activities to meet this objective:

- To procure and distribute of shelter materials to 6,000 families.

The ARCS initially proposed setting up tented camps similar to what they had done in Chlef following the 1989 earthquake. The final decision, however, was made by the authorities to comply with the ORSEC plan. The Civil Protection, as a means of controlling the distribution of aid assumed responsibility for providing tents, plastic sheeting and “camp” beds to flood affected families. In Algiers, temporary shelters such as mosques, schools and sport halls were prioritised over tents while in the outlying regions, due to the limited space available, several tent camps were put up.

During the initial days of the emergency, the ARCS distributed their emergency stock to the regions. One hundred of the tents received by the ARCS in response of the Federation’s appeal were handed over to two regions (wilayat).

The future use of tents, camp beds and plastic sheetings that remain stored in ARCS warehouses, as well as in government warehouses, will be decided by the ARCS. The proposal will be submitted to donors for approval.

- To provide assistance to relocated families

Two ARCS medical teams comprised of a general practitioner, a nurse, a midwife and a psychologist visited families who were relocated due to the floods. Information identifying the families was based on lists provided by the communes in early December 2001.

The medical teams were active in addressing the needs of the victims in all regions. The evaluation conducted by the team concentrated on examining the health of each family member. The team, however, also identified the families’ needs in terms of essential items such as water, gas, electricity, heat, mattress, blanket, utensil, clothing, jerry cans and water tanks.

As of May 2002, the authorities have rehoused a total of 1535 families. Outside the capital, there are still people living in temporary shelters, tent camps and with family members. The rehousing process is expected to be completed in the coming months.

Health w

Objective: to procure and distribute medical supplies, basic drugs and equipment to health institutions.

Activities to meet this objective:

To prevent any overlap, the ARCS worked in close cooperation with the Ministry of Health and the Civil Protection. The Ministry of Health was responsible for providing prescriptions and consultations while the ARCS medical team was responsible for distributing the medications and coordinating the medical operation throughout the sites. In each of the 14 affected regions, tents were used for consultations as well as distributions of medicaments. Medical teams in Algiers worked from four tents while six tents housed the teams in Oran. A total of three medical tents were set up in each of the 12 other regions.

The Netherlands Red Cross 13 basic health kits were used in all of the affected regions with the exception of Ain Temouchent, who informed the ARCS that they possessed sufficient amount of medical stock. The kits were well appreciated. Some of the drugs, i.e. for paludism, will be reallocated under the supervision of ARCS national headquarters to other parts of the country, particularly the southern areas. A training will be scheduled in the future on how to use the basic health kits at local branch level.

Thirty-four cartons of an assortment of medicine from the Iranian Red-Crescent was distributed in Algier.

In addition, ARCS psychologists provided psychological support to the victims. From 12 November, a team of two psychologists visited families located in temporary and relocation sites.

Temporary sites in Algiers

Sites	No. of families	No. of persons seen	Adults	Children
Maut-Blaisant (school)	56	15	5	10
Telemly (nursery)	13	9	2	7
Belouizdad (market)	36	8	2	6
Rouisseau	25	7	6	1
Rouzareah (school)	85	8	2	6
El Biar		8	2	6
Total	215	55	19	36

Psychological symptoms identified among children included: a refusal to go to school, aggressiveness, turbulence, insomnia, isolation, lack of appetite. Among adults the most frequent symptoms were: anxiety, insomnia and nightmares.

The team of psychologists reduced the number of family visits as the situation gradually improved.

Water-sanitation w

Objective 1 : To minimise the risk of outbreak of waterborne disease.

ARCS activities to meet this objective were:

- distribute water purification tablets to 6,000 households;

- procure and distribute 6,000 water containers.

The Health and Water Ministries were entirely responsible for water and sanitation operations following the flooding. Nevertheless, they worked closely with the ARCS. Water purification tablets, 1600 buckets and 3 bladder-tanks donated by the Netherlands Red Cross were distributed on some temporary sites in the wilayat of Chleff and Tipaza.

Logistics w

An ERU team was sent early on to advise the ARCS logistics department with implementing the International Federation logistics system, to have better control of the receipt and forwarding of goods.

Movement of goods:

- there were three entrance points: Alger airport, Alger harbour and Oran harbour;
- from the airport, the goods were automatically sent for storage in a government warehouse “El Hamiz” at the “protection civile”;
- from Hamiz warehouse, goods were dispatched either to a government warehouse, or upon request to ARCS warehouses;
- from harbours, the ARCS had the responsibility for the release of the goods and the transportation directly to ARCS warehouses in Alger/Diar Saada, Tipaza/Shaiiba, and Oran;
- Private trucks were hired by the ARCS for the transportation of goods between warehouses, and from warehouses located close to the affected areas.

Each of the two warehouses were equipped with a computer. Each of the warehouse managers were trained in goods management, the “IN and OUT” process, and reporting to donors.

Telecommunications w

The HF and VHF radio network of the ARCS was previously deactivated for security purposes. During the operation, all communications for coordination between Headquarters, local branches, and volunteers in the field were done through the PTT telephone network reinforced by seven GSM mobile phone generously loaned by the Ericsson representative in Algeria.

National Society Capacity Building w

The flood relief operation built upon the existing capacities of the national society. Local staff and volunteers at national and branch levels were involved in all phases of the operation, including planning, implementation, and evaluation. The initial assessments by the national society were also part of the ARCS’s capacity building process.

In October 2001, following March 2001’s National Committee meeting, the ARCS has completed the training of first aid trainers. A total of 144 volunteers have received first aid training.

First aid courses for staff and volunteers are due to begin at the end of February and training material is in the process of being completed. The last phase of training will be the organisation of specialised first aid training.

At the invitation of the Egyptian Red Crescent Society, two volunteers from the ARCS participated in a three day Sphere seminar in Dakar on March 11.

Conclusion

The emergency phase of the operation is complete, and plans will be shared with PNSs for the use of the remaining goods. Given the fact that natural disasters pose a constant threat, as a follow-up to the lessons learnt during the 2001 floods operation, a programme coordinator will be based in Algeria to support the ARCS with upgrading their DP/DR capacities. The Federation programme coordinator will be responsible for activities such as, implementing a VCA, training of national headquarters and branch staff and upgrading ARCS warehouse management. The project coordinator will also be responsible for following up on ARCS/Federation projects in the country, such as the training centres for female victims of violence, and will coordinate and share information regarding ARCS projects with the Federation and sister societies.
